UNCOVERING HISTORY

The Parkdale Theatre made its grand debut in the spring of 1920. Renowned cinema tycoons, Jay and Jule Allen, were the visionaries behind its construction. Designed by the esteemed movie palace architect, C. Howard Crane, the building boasted a lavish interior adorned with an expansive ornate plaster ceiling, intricate gilded accents, sparkling crystal chandeliers, and over 1500 sumptuous leather seats.

A large crowd of people is shown at a concert or event in a hall. The ceiling features a large, ornate circular light fixture with a central blue and red design. The crowd is dense, and many people have their hands raised in the air. The lighting is dim, with some blue and purple hues. The text "900" and "CAPACITY STANDING" is overlaid on the image.

The Lot

You might just see a parking lot, but we see a world of opportunity.

This is Parkdale Hall's hidden gem for many reasons. We have transformed the (square foot) space into outdoor markets, tented events and have even held live performers.

and yes, it also works as a functioning parking lot. ;)
